Dear Friends and Supporters,

Thank you for making 2016 yet another remarkable year for Alexandra House! Because of your generous support, Alexandra House was able to continue providing innovative, trauma-informed, and compassionate support and services to those who turn to us seeking safety, advocacy, and support.

This year, like those before it was full of change. Nevertheless, what has not changed is that domestic and sexual violence remains a leading cause of homelessness for women and children. We know that domestic and sexual violence is not experienced in isolation from other life events, but is interwoven in people’s lives in complex ways. Poverty, education, domestic and sexual violence, and homelessness are pieces of a complex puzzle.

It’s estimated that 35% of women experiencing homelessness in Minnesota are homeless as a direct result of domestic abuse. That’s the highest number reported since Wilder started the survey in 1991, and up 5% from 2012. The study also reported that 50% of homeless women and 24% of homeless men reported they stayed in an abusive relationship because they had nowhere else to go.

We know that women living in poverty are more likely to suffer from health problems and are more likely to be survivors of domestic violence. We also know that children who grow up impoverished are more likely to suffer from health issues, developmental delays, behavioral problems, lower academic achievement, and unemployment in adulthood. If we fail to address all pieces of the puzzle—we only perpetuate the cycle of poverty, homelessness, inequality—and domestic and sexual violence.

The work of Alexandra House promotes safety from family violence and provides supportive services such as: helping people find affordable housing, violence prevention in the schools, therapy and support groups, meeting personal goals of obtaining a job or continuing their education—things that do provide a pathway out of poverty. Alexandra House helps victim/survivors access these basic needs while providing life-saving programming.

Much of our success over the past 40 years is the direct result of your unwavering commitment to the work we do. Your support—time, talent, and treasure—is integral to ensuring Alexandra House is here for victim/survivors for as long as we are needed. Whether you volunteer, serve as an ambassador, make a gift—you are contributing to the success of Alexandra House. Your donations have helped sustain Alexandra House’s work to improve services to victim/survivors and their children, and raise community awareness about the issue of domestic and sexual violence. Your giving is a tangible demonstration of your deep commitment and concern for victim/survivors of domestic and sexual violence and for a safe and healthy community.

On behalf of Alexandra House and every person served, thank you.

Programs & Services

A Safe Haven

Emergency Services: Alexandra House operates a 24-hour domestic and sexual violence emergency shelter and can accommodate up to 35 women and children at one time. All basic needs are provided for including food, personal care items, clothing, linens, diapers, and laundry facilities.

A Lifeline

Help Line: Alexandra House offers a free and confidential 24-hour help line. Advocates will listen to your concerns, answer your questions, assist with safety planning, explain how to obtain an Order For Protection (OFP), offer other resources available in your area, or help you find shelter.

A Voice

Legal Advocates: are a free and confidential resource to help clients navigate the legal system in criminal and protective order cases. Advocates offer safety planning, crime victim advocacy, and explanation of criminal court procedures following a domestic or sexual assault in Anoka County.

In 2016:

555 victim/survivors and their children received 11,042 nights of safety.

4,806+ calls were answered on our 24-hour emergency help line.

1,038 clients were supported by our civil and criminal justice advocacy services including: filing of protection orders, support during civil and criminal court proceedings, and legal representation.
Programs & Services

A First Responder

Hospital Advocacy: Alexandra House staff and volunteers are there for victims of sexual assault and domestic violence throughout their evidentiary examinations. Advocates respond 24 hours a day, 365 days a year to provide support and advocacy services to victims in any treatment care unit within the hospitals as well as any designated areas of the clinics.

Therapy & Support Groups: Alexandra House offers therapy sessions in a safe and confidential environment for survivors to express their feelings, thoughts, and fears. We also offer nine different support groups for survivors of domestic and sexual violence and their supportive loved ones.

A Community

Follow Up Services: will work with individuals and families to empower and support them as they work toward their goals of safety, healing, and self-sufficiency. Each client is met with in a safe and personal setting. Advocates use a holistic approach to help the client achieve lasting change and begin the healing process. From schools to county social workers, landlords to therapists, advocates help clients communicate their needs and find solutions working with the systems involved in their lives.

In 2016:

- 272 victims of sexual and domestic violence received crisis intervention, safety planning, and support at local hospitals and clinics (Mercy Hospital, Allina Medical Clinic, Unity Hospital, and Coon Rapids Women's Health).
- 105 families received personal follow up support services and housing and financial assistance.
- 293 victim/survivors and their children began their healing process at weekly support groups services.
- 28 adults, children, and youth received ongoing therapy services.
Programs & Services

A Promise

Aging Services: Abuse in later life takes many forms, most often involving emotional and psychological abuse, intimidation and threats, isolation, neglect, and financial exploitation. Alexandra House offers client-centered advocacy services specifically for adults 50 and over. An advocate is available to meet in-home or in another safe location of the client’s choosing.

A Role Model

Youth Services: Stopping the cycle of violence must include work with young people. Alexandra House offers a variety of services to help kids start talking about healthy relationships and to offer intervention and counseling for young survivors of domestic and sexual violence. Youth Services has three full-time staff to coordinate weekly prevention and intervention programs in six school districts in Anoka County, at Lino Lakes Juvenile Correctional Facilities, and summer outreach activities.

A Mentor

Community Education / Awareness: Alexandra House understands that education is critical to creating significant, long-term change. We offer free presentations, facilitated dialogues, and professional trainings to community groups and individuals on the basics of domestic and/or sexual violence. This is a non-threatening way to learn more about the issues and take a stand through partnership with Alexandra House.

In 2016:

40 older adults victims of abuse, neglect, and financial exploitation received client-centered advocacy services specifically for adults 50+.

1,350 children, youth, and parents were touched through Youth Services.

6,605 students learned about healthy relationships through classroom presentations.

5,886 community members increased their awareness and knowledge through community education presentations, professional trainings, and community events.
Who We Serve

We Believe

• Domestic and sexual violence are part of a historical pattern of violence and oppression that disproportionately impacts women and children.

• Domestic and sexual violence affects all classes, genders, ethnicities, faith communities, races, sexual orientations, ages, and abilities.

• Domestic violence is not limited to physical abuse; it includes emotional, financial, sexual, spiritual, and psychological abuse. It is about power and control over others.

• Domestic and sexual violence are crimes and violations of human rights.

• Sex trafficking is a form of violence against women and children.

• Domestic violence is a direct link to other forms of violence and social problems.

• Violence is a learned behavior and a choice.

• Domestic and sexual violence are community problems. Our success is directly connected to working with members of the community in ending domestic and sexual violence.

Our Mission

To empower victims of domestic and sexual violence, and inspire social change, through education, support, and advocacy.
Journey to Healing

Deondra’s Story

I didn’t have an idyllic childhood; in fact, my parents were drug addicts. This resulted in my three siblings and I being passed around from family member to family member. When my mom regained custody, we bounced around from place to place, shelter to shelter. Life was just as unstable and my mom wasn’t around much so we had to fend for ourselves. I’d like to say that was the worst of it but unfortunately all of us experienced sexual abuse at some point in our life.

My life changed when I met Ry’mon, my charming, high school sweetheart. Being with him was an escape from the chaos and abuse at home. Granted, our relationship wasn’t perfect. When we argued he would scream, call me names and insult me. But afterwards, he’d apologize and bring me gifts. He was extremely jealous but it seemed romantic at first. At the time, I didn’t recognize this as emotional and verbal abuse.

His mom passed away soon after our daughter, Amiarah, was born. That’s when things really changed. It was the first time he ever hit me. I didn’t believe it would happen again...but it did and each time it was just as shocking as the first. He’d blame me for the abuse. I remember thinking “I must be an awful person if I make you want to hurt me like that.” Eventually I ended our relationship. But as much as I wanted to be away from Ry’mone, I wanted Amiarah to have a relationship with her father. I didn’t want her to grow up without a father, so I agreed to share custody.

Amiarah was with Ry’mon one cold weekend in late October when he showed up at the apartment where I was staying with a friend. He demanded that I leave with him and threatened to keep Amiarah if I didn’t. My friend begged me not to go but I didn’t feel like I had any other options. I was only concerned for Amiarah’s safety.

He drove me to an unfamiliar neighborhood, assaulted me in front of his friends, and abandoned me there without my coat, taking Amiarah with him. Thankfully, neighbors called the police who found Amiarah quickly. Once Amiarah was safely in my arms I said to myself, “she will not go through this again. This is the end.”

I came to Alexandra House because of Amiarah. I wanted her safe...but I had no love for myself. At that point, I had completely shut down. The first few days in the shelter were a blur; I felt numb. I could barely get out of bed to care for Amiarah. I hid in my room, not knowing how to start planning for the future. One of the advocates kept visting me in my room; asking me what I wanted to do next and offering her help and support. It took time but as I got to know the shelter staff I was able to face the job of piecing my life back together. I decided to attend one of the support groups offered at the shelter. There I found myself sharing my experience—and then everybody else started sharing what was happening with them. That was a really powerful moment for me. I could finally put my shoulders down and relax. The pain slowly started to come out—like releasing poison from my body.

When I left the shelter, I was given the opportunity to work with a follow-up advocate who’d provide on-going support. It wasn’t until I walked into my new apartment that I realized how much I needed that help. I was terrified to be alone in my apartment. I was certain Ry’mone would find me. My advocate helped make me feel safe and regain my confidence as a person. Working with her for that extended period of time helped me to work through experiences that I had completely blocked out. Having someone there to listen was amazing. It was really the first time in my life that I allowed myself to be vulnerable with anyone. That was a pivotal moment for me. I opened up these doors—that I didn’t even know were doors.

My follow-up advocate inspired me to share my story. She said, “I think that a lot of people could learn from your story.” It’s been eight years since I left the shelter and I have made it my mission to speak out against domestic violence—and to support other victim/survivors. I have a voice and a platform in my job training new staff and as a Miss Minnesota contestant. I want to let other victim/survivors know there is an open door should you ever want to walk through it. With help from Alexandra House, I was able to overcome this trauma and rebuild my life. There is hope!
We are proud to say that 85% of funds raised are directed to programs and services. We have experienced tremendous growth and feel encouraged that our future holds continued growth and prosperity with the help of our generous community members.
